Thinking Differently About Safety

Minute by minute the world is changing. Technology has added new dimensions to how we as human beings react to our surroundings. Yet, in many areas, we are still using old methods of coping with our environment and industry that no longer fit the situation. Looking at a different way of dealing with safety in the workplace is what the new view, the Human Performance view of safety management, is all about. Progress is being made in examining the journey that it takes to make these changes in management of the company's systems and the workers' behaviors...in parallel.

Dr. Todd Conklin

Dr. Conklin spent 25 years at Los Alamos National Laboratory as a Senior Advisor for Organizational and Safety Culture. Dr. Conklin has been working on the Human Performance program for the last 15 years of his 25-year career. It is in this fortunate position where he enjoys the best of both the academic world and the world of safety in practice. He holds a Ph.D. in organizational behavior from the University of New Mexico and speaks all over the world to executives, groups, and work teams who are interested in better understanding the relationship between the workers in the field and the organization's systems, processes, and programs. His podcast can be accessed at <http://preaccidentpodcast.podbean.com/>. The Preaccident Investigation Podcast is an ongoing discussion of human performance, systems safety, and safety culture.
